

Internet Explorer and VGMU

VGM has recently received word that Microsoft is no longer providing technical support for Internet Explorer version 5.0 (IE v5.0), and will be dropping technical support for IE v5.5 in the near future.

This is important to VGMU users because VGMU is accessed via the Internet. In order for VGMU to function to its optimum level, VGMU users should be using IE v6.0.

IE v6.0 has been installed on all new computers for the past couple years. You can check your computer's version of Internet Explorer by doing the following:

1. Log on to the Internet.
2. Click Help on the menu bar.
3. Click About Internet Explorer.
4. Your version of Internet Explorer will display on the first line.

If you do not have IE v6.0, you can download it at no cost from Microsoft by clicking Tools on the menu bar and clicking Windows Update.

Note: Because of the size of the IE v6.0 download, we recommend that VGMU users who access the Internet via a dial-up service should install IE v6.0 from a CD. You can order the CD from the Microsoft website (www.microsoft.com).
